Launched of PSLV and ASLV-II

699. DR. NARREDDY THULASI REDDY: Will the PRIME MINISTER be pleased to state:

(a) What are the salient features of the report given by the Failure Analysis Committee which went into the abortive launch of the ASLV on July 3, 1988; and

(b) by when the PSLV and ASLV-II are likely to be launched?

THE MINISTER OF STATE IN THE MINISTRY OF SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY AND THE MINISTER OF STATE IN THE DEPARTMENTS OF OCEAN DEVELOPMENT, ATOMIC ENERGY, ELECTRONICS AND SPACE (SHRI K. R. NARAYANAN): (a) The Failure Analysis Committee (FAC) has submitted their report to the Expert Review Panel (ERP), which is also independently examining all the data to find the exact cause of the ASLV failure. The FAC has concluded that the ASLV-D2 mission has failed due to the break up of the upper portion of the vehicle at about 50.4 sec. after lift off. While the FAC report has attributed the failure as due to the loss of control at the maximum dynamic pressure region resulting in excessive build up of Yaw angle of attack and the flight loads exceeding the acceptable limits the independent evaluation and findings of the ERP is awaited. Based on the ERP recommendations the remedial actions will be initiated to ensure the success of the next launch.

(b) Work on PSLV is currently at an advanced stage. It is expected that the first launch of PSLV can take place in 1990-91 time frame.

Regarding the next flight of ASLV-D3/C1, the launch date will be firmed up based on the recommendations of the ERP and the extent of modifications required to be incorporated.
